EQyss Avocado Mist

This coat conditioner was everything our tester needed before a horse show—a body shine and detangler all in one. Our tester sprayed her horse when he was wet, and was greeted with a weightless, greaseless shine the next day—her horse's tail wasn't sticky, and his coat was dust free. The amazing (as in, want-to-use-it-on-yourself amazing) smell alone could sell this spray, but the fact that it's environmentally friendly and silicon free makes it a perfect choice for show day prep or everyday maintenance.

Shapley's Hi Gloss Finishing Spray

This aerosol finishing spray is perfect for last minute touch-ups next to the show ring. The oil-based spray quickly adds dramatic highlights to your horse's coat with a light and quiet spray that even the most skittish of equines was able to handle. Be sure to run a quick towel over your horse after applying it, as the oil can attract dust.

With a delicate berry fragrance, it was pleasing without being overpowering. It is powerful enough for an instant shine, yet was also great for daily conditioning of the coat. You can also apply it to your horse's hooves in place of hoof oil in a pinch.

GLOSSY Gloss Enhancing Coat Tonic

Our tester can't get enough of the "green" products out there—more specifically, the ones that work—and this Gloss Enhancing Coat Tonic certainly fits the bill. It's a multi-use spray that successfully both nourishes the coat and gives it a nice, shimmery sheen...and it didn't make her saddle pad slip! With the sweet smell of citrus, instead of chemicals, this spray brought a smile to our tester's face (without bringing the bugs).

If you are looking for a little extra sparkle when you hit the show ring, you have come to the right place. This month our testers help you get your shine on.

Vetrolin Shine

The familiar minty fresh smell of Vetrolin was the first thing that our tester noticed about this coat polish and conditioner that has the added benefit of not attracting those awful flies. It adds a lovely shine to the horse's coat, while the vitamin rich conditioners helped the condition of the coat, mane, and tail. Sunscreens offered protection from the sun for complete coverage and helped to avoid bleaching. If you're going to be riding your horse, avoid the saddle area with this spray as it can make the hair a bit slick.

Best Shot Ultra Vitalizing Mist Coat Finisher and Detangler

Our tester tried the Best Shot Ultra Vitalizing Mist Coat Finisher and Detangler on a pony straight out of the field that looked less than lustrous. A few spritzes in the tangled mess of mane and tail made brushing out simple and knot-free. The fresh peppermint scent was invigorating for both horse and human, and our tester liked that the spray is water-based and pH balanced, so every drop is sure to be beneficial. Even after being ridden, our test pony still had a silky tail and a shiny hiney!

Mane 'n Tail Shine-On

This spray-on formula gave the tester's horse an instant shine that lasted longer than other brands she had tried. She also loved that dust and most stains brushed out easier, and her horse was more than happy to oblige in a good dust bath to try it out. Shine-On is a gentle, pH balanced spray that left the hair smooth without being sticky, and also kept manes and tails tangle free without an overpowering fragrance. Although it can be applied to dry hair, the tester found it absorbed better and spread more evenly when applied to wet hair.
